The winter is past, the rain is over and gone. The flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land. Poets have greeted thy return, sweet May! in every age and country;--and here let us follow their advice: -- Be cheerful: be full of mirth: for the Spring passes soon away, it will not last. We will repair our summer-bowers when the almond-tree sheds its silver blossoms: we will listen for the tale of the nightingale, as the vernal season approaches. In modern times, however, joy and gladness are reduced to mere sentiment: and with some degree of envy we read of the Floralia, or games in honour of Flora, of ancient times: and of Maid Marian and Robin Hood, c--all now banished to their native woods: we, villagers, have nothing left for it, but to store our memories with the Poet's images, and so be merry and wise. Again we hail thee! beautiful May! and joyfully return to the tranquil pleasures of our seclusion. As we rove amid the luxuriant bloom of reviving nature, and press the rich turf that springs beneath our feet, we seem to feel again, in all their freshness, the sensations of our childhood, the serene sky, enamelled mead, the perfumed air, the soft agitation of the foliage, the melody of birds, and all the harmonies of nature, welcome thy return,...
